

Voices For Peace - Afghanistan

Defending Democracy and Free Press

Supporting the Families
of the Fallen Journalists

Journalists in Kabul were lost in attack against the media, leaving behind heartbroken family and friends. The Zamani Foundation provided a year's supply of sustenance to the nine families of the fallen journalists.

---

In Remembrance Of:

Shah Marai, Photographer for Agence
France-Presse

Ebadullah Hananzai, Radio Free Europe

Sabawoon Kakar, Radio Free Europe

Yar Mohammad Tokhi, Cameraman at Tolonews

Ghazi Rasooli, 1TV reporter

Nowrooz Rajabj, 1TV cameraman

Saleem Talash, Mashal TV reporter

Mahram Durani, Shamsad TV

Ali Salimi, Cameraman at Mashal TV

“Peacekeeping missions involve efforts toward a free press, a nation where people have the right to the truth.”

---

The Zamani Foundation is an organization dedicated to the truth, a free press, and the future of Afghanistan. There were nine fallen journalists in Kabul, the worst attack against the media in five years. They left holes in the mission of journalism and in the hearts of their families. Those lost were often the only breadwinners in their families. Three were to be married, another left behind six children, some were close to graduating from universities, all of them had such beautiful futures in store.

“The Zamani Foundation is a strong advocate for a free, vibrant press, and see it as a critical ingredient in Afghanistan’s recipe for democracy.”

VOICES FOR PEACE

Statistics

- People Supported: 45

As one way to help the families of the reporters, the Zamani Foundation provided food for a year for those who lost a loved one.

The journalists wrote about the present and the possibilities for the future. The Zamani Foundation will continue to support those ideals, within reach, and promote freedom of press, speech, and democracy. Those lost were not lost in vain, as the Zamani Foundation will not forget what they stood for, worked for every day to support their families and their country: Democracy of Afghanistan and a nation of hope and opportunity.

” Education breeds confidence.
Confidence breeds hope.
Hope breeds peace.

Thank you for reading

Voices For Peace - Afghanistan

Defending Democracy and Free Press

Supporting the Families
of the Fallen Journalists

---

SHARE

