A Lasting Difference in Quality of Life

Powerful Example in Allegany County, New York

The Zamani Foundation's contribution to the Allegany County United Way set a powerful example for others to follow and boosted progress in key areas of need.

The Zamani Foundation contributed $25,000 to Allegany County United Way for general campaigns. The missions included the Mission Genesee Valley and the Raptis Community Center Project. The support is in alignment with The Zamani Foundation's philosophy, which promotes education, and the goals of the ACUW and the Education Council to boost every child's chance for success in school and work.

United Way

“Important focus areas of health, income self-sufficiency, education and meeting critical needs are at the top of ACUW’s priorities.”

Through its support, the Zamani Foundation acknowledges the importance of people having access to fundamental needs and better opportunity.

Our contributions were hailed by Judi Niedercorn, Executive Director of ACUW, who said these funds would help the organization to accomplish something powerful for our community.

“Your investment will be used where it is most needed and will make a lasting difference in the quality of life for people in our area,” Niedercorn said. “You set a powerful example for others to follow.”

Statistics

- $25,000

According to the ACUW, about 46% of children currently start school without the skills they need in order to succeed. Through our contributions, we hope to improve these statistics and provide children with a higher chance of building a better future. “DGC International is honored to be a part of an initiative that lays closely to our hearts,” Mustafa Zamani, the Zamani Foundation Founder, said.

” Education breeds confidence.
Confidence breeds hope.
Hope breeds peace.
